What is the difference between Arabic language and other languages?

Why is Arabic unlike other systems of writing?

Arabic language is different because it has 28 letters.
and it is written from right to left.

The background of the image is a close-up photograph of a plant with vibrant green, oval-shaped leaves and several bright red, five-petaled flowers. The flowers are in various stages of bloom, with some showing a darker red center. The lighting is soft, creating a natural and slightly blurred effect in the background.

Why is Arabic the second widely used language?

Arabic is the second widely used language because it is used throughout the Arab world and it is the basics of other forms of writing.
